Red Cross Reports by Ozan, Goodlett Sends Total $73.29

Weisenberger Urges All Rural Chairmen to Complete Drive

3 HAVE REPORTED

Ozan Sends in $20.50 and Goodlett Community Reports $17.20

Royce Weisenberger, chairman of the Red Cross Roll Call in the county outside of Hope, reports encouraging reports from all rural townships.

"It looks like all will be able by hard work on the part of the volunteer workers to go over the top," Weisenberger said.

However, he warned that the deadline for the drive to close, November 30, is almost at hand.

For that reason he urges all workers to either bring to his office or to mail to him their report not later than Tuesday, November 28, in order that he can have the final report ready by November 30.

Mr. Weisenberger feels that the successful work in Hope on the part of Mrs. Martindale and her workers has been an inspiration to all rural chairmen and in part responsible for the fact that all rural areas that have reported to date have exceeded last year's totals for the area.

Spare-Time Literati—

3 Years, 1 Book

OMAHA, Neb.—(AP)—A young taxi-cab driver and his still younger brother—a bus depot porter—have written a book. It's called "The Ridgewood Murders," and a publisher has accepted it.

It took Martin Hume, 28, and his 22-year-old brother, Carr, 19, three years to turn out the book, started when both were students at Westinghouse Springs, S. D., junior college.

Martin, who drives the cab, works 10 hours a day and collaborates with Carr, who has only a part-time job, when both can get together.

They've started another book.

Somebody Loves Him, Anyway

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(AP)—John Luther Callaway, 6-foot, 6-inch, 215-pound Centerdown, Ky., giant, was too much of a good thing, the Marine Corps decided in rejecting his enlistment application.

Sergeant Homer Callahan explained the Marines couldn't go in for extremes of building because of their service in foreign lands. "Suppose we were in China or the Philippines," the sergeant said, "and a man of Callaway's size needed a pair of shoes. You couldn't get them over there and it might take weeks to have them shipped."

So Callaway went to the Coast Artillery station and enlisted in the regular army. He was accepted.

Malvern Defeats Hot Springs 13-0

Fort Smith Wins Over North Little Rock by 13 to 6

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—Malvern High School's eleven handed the Hot Springs Trojans their fourth defeat of the season, 13 to 0, here Friday night. The visitors outplayed the Trojans all the way. Hot Springs didn't get past Malvern's 40-yard line until late in the last quarter.

Malvern scored its first touchdown in the second quarter when Fowler passed 17 yards to Johnson, who caught the ball on the goal line. Rowe kicked the extra point. Malvern scored again in the last two minutes of the third quarter. Beeson passed 30 yards to Ross, who went over untouched.

FOOT SMITH—An offensive which netted two touchdowns in the first half carried the Fort Smith Grizzlies to a 13-to-6 victory over the North Little Rock Wildcats before more than 3,500 fans here Friday night.

The victory was the fourth for the Grizzlies, beaten only by Pine Bluff in Arkansas High School conference play. It was North Little Rock's fourth defeat in conference competition. Credit for the victory goes to a group of staunch Fort Smith line men who made two gallant goal line stands.

El Dorado Smashes Fordyce

EL DORADO, Ark.—El Dorado Wildcats celebrated their 11th annual homecoming game Friday night by holding a truck meet at the expense of the hapless Fordyce Redbugs 65 to 6. Practically every reserve on the El Dorado bench got a chance.

After the El Dorado third string had gone into the game in the final quarter, Fordyce used a couple of long passes to move the ball into scoring territory. Handeman plunged the ball across. Fordyce failed to convert.

O little town of Bethlehem!
How still we see thee lie;
Above thy deep and dream-

One of the youngest of the carols, this one has a purely American origin. It was written in 1868 by Phillips Brooks, Philadelphia minister, for the children in his Sunday School classes to sing.

OKLAHOMA CITY—(AP)—Seeking a way to save her chrysanthemum beds from frost, Mrs. B. R. Ticknor erected canvas tents over them and heated the tents with electric lights. The scheme worked and Mrs. Ticknor walked away with most of the honors at the Oklahoma City chrysanthemum show—15 blue ribbons.

Announcements Must Be Signed

Within the last several weeks The Star has received a number of announcements which, because their senders failed to sign name and address, can not be published.

Signatures are not printed, but the authority back of the announcement must be known to the management before it can be used.

This rule is enforced absolutely in announcements concerning weddings, engagements, births and deaths. If any subscriber has sent such an announcement to us and failed to get it published it is because the announcement was not signed—and unsigned communications are treated alike, even though the omission is an oversight.

Jap-U.S. Split Is Likely Event for the Coming Year

Tokyo Says U. S. Won't Recognize "New Order" in Orient

A TREATY-BREAKER

U. S. in Thinly-Veiled Threat to Retaliate by Trade Penalty

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—The State Department is keeping a weather eye out on Europe but the real trouble spot for this country just now is Japan. It will be the headline-maker around the first of the year.

It would be hard to find two nations so actively engaged in ruffling each other's feelings while at peace as the United States and Japan.

Naturally, both sides claim to be right. Each claims the other is pursuing a course which fails to take into consideration the realities of the situation.

Pro and Con

Japan insists that the United States, along with all other non-Oriental nations, fails to "understand" that there is a "new order" in the Orient. The assertion that others do not "understand" the peculiar problems of the Orient is a favorite one of the Japanese.

On the contrary, the United States declares it very well understands the situation. Japan, says the United States, deliberately set out to make over China in its own image, all in violation of international law and in violation of treaties Japan had signed with other countries.

Debate Goes On

The Japanese always insists that the United States is being used by the British as a caspaw to protect British interests in the Orient.

The United States says its interest is governed by a large concept—equality of opportunity once agreed to by a group of nations cannot be changed simply by one nation.

"Failure to observe that principle," said Ambassador Grew in a comprehensive statement to the Japanese of the U. S. position, "breeds international friction and ill-will, with consequences injurious to all countries, including in particular those countries which fail to observe it."

Japan apparently forgot to read closely enough the part of that sentence after the last comma. Also it evidently forgot to read the next part of the same paragraph, in which Grew said:

"Observance of that principle (of equal opportunity) promotes the opening of trade channels thereby making available the markets, the raw materials and the manufactured products of the community of nations on a mutually and reciprocally beneficial basis."

Reprisals Grow

That should have told Japan that such things as embargoes of raw materials were being discussed in the United States. But Japan didn't take the hint. The annoying blockade of the British area in Tientsin—including the public stripings and searching—was extended in part to Americans.

Reprisal came fairly fast. Senator Pittman, chairman of the foreign relations committee, who frequently acts under State Department guidance, introduced a resolution calling for an embargo against Japan. Hot on its heels came the U. S. denunciation of the 28-year-old trade treaty with Japan.

If the United States had wanted simply to exert pressure on Japan, it could have done so forcefully and effectively while negotiating a new treaty. But just now it is popular to lash the Japanese, so they got it in the teeth.

The Japanese have replied in kind. Within the past few days a detailed report was filed with the State Department of the increasing restrictions imposed by Japanese on Yankee operations in China.

Sale of Car Tags Lagging in Hope

Must Purchase 1939 Tags Before 1940 License Can Be Issued

Ed Van Stekle of the Revenue Department announces that the sale of auto tags are very slow.

The department wishes to announce again that it will be necessary for all cars that are now operating without 1939 tags must procure same before 1940 tags can be purchased.

A drive will be started by the department next week on all cars not having 1939 tags.

Guarding Georgia's Bonanza

Guards with shotguns patrol the entrance of the century-old Calhoun mine, near Dahlonega, Ga., after discovery of a gold vein so great it "appeared as one continuous ribbon of yellow metal." State geologist said bonanza ore assayed $80,000 to the ton, richest found in Georgia in 25 years.

U.S. Maneuvers to Be Greatest Ever

Third Infantry Likely to Be Called Out Next Spring

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Department of War, it was reported reliably Saturday is considering using the Third Infantry division of some 8,000 officers and men early next year in joint army-navy maneuvers of unprecedented magnitude.

The maneuvers are to be on the Pacific coast, possibly in conjunction with the annual war games of the fleet.

8 Hurt in Dodge Strikers' Rioting

CIO Tieup Continues, With 58,000 Chrysler Men Out of Work

DETROIT, Mich.—(AP)—A barrage of bricks and stones injured eight persons and resulted in 22 arrests Friday but failed to prevent 57 workers from passing a CIO-United Automobile Workers picket line and entering the closed Dodge main plant of Chrysler Corporation. The first mass violence of the 50-day-old contract dispute between the UAW-CIO and the corporation came a few hours before negotiations for settlement were adjourned for the week-end with "no progress" reported.

Arthur E. Rash, chairman of the state Labor Mediation Board, said that a recess until Monday was declared in the hope the parties can produce some new ideas. Negotiations have deadlocked on the issues of union wage demands and a demand by the corporation for assurance that the request of a CIO foreman's union for a bargaining conference will not be renewed.

Two policemen were among the injured in the picket-line clash at the Dodge plant, closing of which forced suspension of operations at other Chrysler units and brought idleness to 58,000 Chrysler employees. The injured officers are Lieut. Marvin Berry and Patrolman Thomas Burke. Both suffered head injuries.

Mexico to Sell Stolen Oil in U.S.

Exporting of Oil to Europe Is Blocked by British Fleet

MEXICO CITY, Mexico.—(AP)—Officials of Petroleos Mexicanos, government-controlled oil administration, Friday night confirmed that negotiations virtually had been completed with a United States concern to dispose of Mexico's entire exportable oil production, about 88,000 barrels daily.

The name of the American agency, the price fixed, term of the contract and other details of the reported agreement were closely guarded. It could not be determined whether the American company had contracted actually to buy all Mexico's oil exports, or would merely serve as a sales agent.

The new contract would supersede Mexico's commitments to Germany, Italy and South American countries, including Brazil and Argentina. These contracts have, in fact, been almost inoperative since outbreak of the European war.

The strain placed on Mexican economy by the virtual disappearance of the nation's foreign oil markets was said to have enhanced attractiveness of the American deal.

Mexico's foreign outlets have been virtually closed by the British blockade of Germany failure of Italy to provide tankers to ship the oil contracted for under her rayon-oil agreement with Mexico, and Mexico's lack of tankers with which to transport oil to South America.

Although Mexico's petroleum administration announced in October that new contracts had been let which would take care of all exportable oil into 1940, it is known that Mexico's oil exports have declined nearly 58 per cent over July when large shipments were going to Germany and Italy. Total July exports were 2,449,684 barrels.

The reported American contract would not imperil Mexico's million dollar credit with Germany, repaying oil shipments for which Germany has not paid. It was said the unpaid balance was deposited in a German bank to the account of the Mexican government.

Only Three Tickets Sold for Special Football Train

Hope football fans who desire to ride a special train to Pine Bluff next Thursday for the championship football game between the Bobcats and Zebras must make up their minds by 3 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The Athletic committee must inform railroad officials at that hour. It takes time to complete arrangements for a special train.

Up until noon Saturday only three persons had laid their "money on the line" at the office of Roy Anderson. Promises don't count. Round trip fare to Pine Bluff is $2.75.

The Athletic committee must guarantee 200 adult tickets. That's $550. If the committee has sold 100 tickets by 3 o'clock Monday afternoon the special train will be chartered. The high school band and football squad would account for the other 100 tickets.

If you want to ride the train, go to the office of Roy Anderson before 3 o'clock Monday afternoon and pay your $2.75. That's the zero hour.

Neutrals' Rights Are Subordinate to War, They Say

Long List of Nations Pro- tests Proposed Seizures at Sea

THE BRITISH REPLY

German Mine Campaign Makes Export Blockade Necessary

LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—Mounting neutral protests failed to sway Great Britain Saturday from her determination to intensify the economic war on Germany by seizing German exports.

The list of countries which have made or plan to make representations against the British decision includes the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy, Japan, Sweden and Denmark. The last three were added Saturday.

There were indications that Britain would reply that the protest should be addressed to Germany, whose mine campaign the British asserted called for an export blockade.

German bombers appeared over the Shetland Islands Saturday for the ninth time in four weeks; and air raid warnings also were sounded near the important Clyde shipbuilding center in southwest Scotland.

Report to Washington

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An authoritative spokesman said Saturday Great Britain believed the rules of war superseded the rules of neutrality laid down in this country's neutrality act.

British embassy officials declared it was impossible for any country, by domestic legislation, to immunize its shipping from seizure.

British Camouflage Charge

BERLIN, Germany.—(AP)—The German high command said Saturday that a British auxiliary warship of 7,000 tons, camouflaged as a Netherlands merchantman and used as a U-boat trap, had been sunk by a German submarine.

On the Western front local scouting activity and weak artillery fire at several points were reported by the German communiques.

Rumania Cracks Down

BUCHAREST, Rumania.—(AP)—Rumania's new government, acting to conserve the country's resources for possible war, has prohibited Saturday the exportation of barley and vegetable products, but granted a permit for exportation of 1/2 million dollars worth of petroleum and an equal amount of other products to Clavocia, German protectorate, to pay for munitions.

Yerger to Battle for Championship

Tigers Whip Conway 32- 0; Go to Pine Bluff Next Week

The Yerger High School football team ran wild here Friday afternoon to swamp the Conway Black Bears, 32 to 0. The victory was the eighth of the season.

The Yerger team upheld its record of being unscored on this season, although Conway was within Hope's 5-yard line twice during the game, but was unable to penetrate the Hope line.

The Tigers go to Pine Bluff next Wednesday to battle Corbin High of that city for the state championship. Corbin High barely nosed out Conway last week, 8 to 0, and the Tigers have high hopes of defeating Pine Bluff for the championship.

The Yerger team scored in every quarter against Conway and during the last half the second team took over. Carrigan and Cannon led the attack. Shaw, Gwady, Wright, Stuart and Coleman played good ball for Hope.

Corbin High had its squad here Friday to scout the game. Other visiting teams who saw the game were Philander Smith college of Little Rock and Washington High.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

T. M. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Three-Fourths of Deaths in U. S. Are Attributed to Nine Causes

(This is the first of a series of 11 articles, dealing with the nine principal causes of death in the United States. In the course of the series, Dr. Fisher will not only discuss the diseases and conditions listed in today's article, but he will recommend precautionary measures.)

Nine conditions accounted for 72 percent of the deaths in the United States in 1937. The series of articles which followed is a study of these causes of death. People can, if they will, help cut down the total number of deaths from these causes and also prolong their own lives.

The nine killers are:

1—Diseases of the heart.
2—Influenza and pneumonia.
3—Cancers and other malignant tumors.

4—Nephritis or inflammation of the kidneys.
5—Hemorrhage of the brain and softening of the brain.

6—Tuberculosis.
7—Malformations at birth or other diseases that attack babies below the age of one.

8—Motor vehicle accidents.
9—Diabetes.

Heart disease led all other causes of death, being responsible for almost one-fourth, or exactly 23.9 per cent. It destroyed 346,401 lives. Once it took its toll primarily among youth. But it has changed somewhat in the nature of its attack on the human body and is more important as a cause of death in older people.

Among people 60 years of age, heart disease caused 33.9 per cent of the deaths. Among youth between the ages of 5 and 19, it caused 6.4 per cent of deaths.

Today the diseases of the heart that destroy life are chiefly chronic diseases. The probability that a human being will eventually die from chronic heart disease is 1 1/2 times the chance that he will die either from tuberculosis or cancer.

Heart disease is the leading cause of death at almost every period of life, being outranked only by accident and appendicitis among males at the ages of 10 to 14.

Heart disease is not a single condition. It includes many different factors. There is inflammation of the lining of the heart, which is caused usually by infections. There is disease of the valves of the heart, which is frequently caused by infections, but which may result, as well from the degenerative changes that take place with age.

Certain valvular diseases, like that of the mitral valve, are chiefly of rheumatic origin. Another valve is attacked more often by syphilis. Disease of the aorta, the large blood vessel which leads from the heart is more common in middle life and affects men more often than women.

By far, the most important type of heart trouble is degeneration of the muscle of the heart, which is shown first by enlargement. An enlargement of the heart results from strain on the organ and weakness of the muscle induced by disease.

NEXT: Coronary thrombosis and angina pectoris, two other forms of heart disease.

Sunset

The golden gates of day in quiet close
After the king has passed, and fold
on fold
His crimson banners are together
rolled,
And laid away. The valley of repose
Is hid in which the stately monarch
He spreads his couch beyond the mountains old.
Wrapped in the drapery of living gold
And leaves the night to us, which darker grows.
At such a time, how beauty as a queen Lingers among the arches of
the west,
And nations look enchanted on the scene
And praise the vesper star upon
her breast;
Apprentice to its pillow, childhood
falls asleep—
Heath lark, O world! a night-long silence keep.

Submarine Net to Be Used by U.S.A.

British Invention May Be Placed Across Harbors in U. S.

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Congressional sources said Friday that the navy may ask congress for funds to equip some of the nation's major harbors, particularly those used by the fleet, with the latest type of anti-submarine nets.

Well-informed persons said naval officials had learned that the British had developed a new type of anti-submarine net so far superior to anything in the United States that consideration is being given to seeking about 40 million dollars to provide similar protection for American harbors.

New Deal Changes Manner of Court

Stands Less on Dignity Today—Some Appointees Surprising

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — The death of Justice Pierce Butler gives President Roosevelt his fifth appointment to the Supreme Court and there is a better than average chance he may have an opportunity to appoint one and perhaps two more.

The health of Chief Justice Hughes is such that he has given up all social activities, although of all the members he was the most socially inclined. He has not reduced one iota the staggering amount of work that falls upon a Chief Justice. Observers who know his disposition express the belief that if a time arrives when he cannot accomplish his full quota of work with his old assurance, he will retire at once.

The possible retirement of Justice McReynolds has been rumored and forgotten a half dozen times. It is widely believed that he once had de-initely made up his mind to remain on the court until after the 1940 elections. That way he could keep open one place for a non-New Deal appointment if the elections should run that way.

Yet with the death of Butler, Mc-Reynolds' only persistent associate in dissent is gone. Those two were the survivors of the conservative group which blocked New Deal legislation until the mid-way course charted by Chief Justice Hughes won the support of Justice Roberts in 1937.

That swing the court majority to the liberal side, McReynolds was bitter at the shift of direction, and his displeasure has been displayed often.
To remain on the court will leave to him the whole burden of supporting and writing the dissents, a job which had been shared liberally by the more suave, diplomatic Butler.

Less Dignity
The whole personality of the court has changed as markedly as the tone of its opinions on sociological and governmental issues.

The four pre-New Deal members, Hughes, McReynolds, Roberts and Stone, are elderly and dignified, some of them stern. The four Roosevelt appointees, Frankfurter, Reed, Black and Douglas, are far less so, although in court Reed frowns, almost glowers from the bench. Once behind the velvet curtains that shield them from the court spectators, the four newly appointed members are ebullient, so report comes out.

Except for the gracious though commanding presence of Chief Justice Hughes there are no "out-standing personalities" on the court to rival
the late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes and the retired Justice Brandeis.
So far no close friendships have developed even among the New Dealers like those which characterized that of Holmes with his one time colleagues
Brandeis and the late Chief Justice
White.

Some Disappointment
In the eyes of old time observers,
the new members have presented both surprises and disappointments. Justice Black, who took his seat under a rain of criticism for his asserted Klan connections, writes some of the most concise opinions of the court.

Justice Douglas, these observers say,
has a clear, logical mind akin to Hughes.

Amazing to some are the wordy,
involved opinions of Justice Frankfurter who came to the bench in a smothering of praise amounting to adulation.
His associates, including the Chief Justice, seem to find his questions from the bench time-consuming and often pointless. Once Chief Justice Hughes silenced him rather peremp-

SERIAL STORY

5 WOULD KILL

BY TOM HORNER

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday! Questioning Douglas, Dawson discovers that the young man knows much more about the Benthorpe murder than he is telling. When Flynn reports on Benthorpe's bank deposit, Douglas hears "Big Red" mentioned. "Big Red" was my uncle," he tells Dawson.

CHAPTER X

AS Dawson stared at him incredulously, John Douglas continued: "I was named for him.
He's been missing for years now.
We have reason to believe he is dead. What has he to do with this Benthorpe murder?"

"Just a minute, son," Dawson
countered. "I'll ask the questions,
and perhaps answer a few, too.
How old would your uncle be if he were still alive?"

"Between 70 and 80."

"Ummm. And what makes you think he is dead?"

"I can't tell you all of that right now, Captain. I can't tell you all I know about Benthorpe. I can't even tell you why I came here last night. But if you'll let me talk to Ara, alone, for a few minutes—"

"What possible reason could your uncle have—supposing he were alive—to kill Benthorpe?"

Douglas shook his head. "Why name a dead man as a suspect?"
he countered.

Dawson settled back in his chair,
fished in his wallet for a folded,
wrinkled piece of paper, studied it intently. At last he handed it over to Douglas, saying:

"You may as well know that your admission that 'Big Red' is your uncle, puts you in even a better spot as the No. 1 suspect of Benthorpe's murder. Here, read
this."

Douglas read "I will be killed
tonight—... a woman named Ara... prospector... 'Big Red.'"

"Ara!" he whispered.

Dawson reached out, took the paper from Douglas' hand. "I've a hunch about you, Douglas, and I'll let you talk to Ara, alone. She should still be in the dining room."

JOHN DOUGLAS' precipitous entrance and his ill-considered babbling had left Ara inwardly enraged. What a fool, she thought, to have come here immediately.
If he had only waited until the first editions were on the streets
with the Benthorpe murder story,

But now, anything she might say,
even the truth, would have to be proved. And Dawson was no ordinary detective.

A look of imperturbable calm masked her inward emotional turmoil as she turned back to the table. Joey di Torino stirred his coffee noisily. Krone eyed her as she sat down. Only Helen Ben-thorne seemed entirely undisturbed by the interruption. Ara nibbled on a piece of toast, kept her eyes focused on her plate.

After a few minutes, Joey announced: "Must have left my cigarets in the other room. Coming, Krone?"

"Yeah, I'll go with you." The detective mumbled something in Mrs. Benthorpe's direction as the two men left the dining room.

"I hope you are enjoying your breakfast," Mrs. Benthorpe said, after an interval of silence. There was no cordiality in her voice.

Ara nodded.

"Just what do you plan to do now?" Mrs. Benthorpe demanded.

"I know you must hate me, Mrs.
Benthorpe," Ara answered as she rose from the table, faced the beautiful young widow. "You have reason to. But there is nothing of yours that I want. I intended leaving here as quickly as possible. I feel only pity for you.
Now, I want to forget—everything!"

"There is one thing I am sure you want to forget," Mrs. Ben-thorne's words were sharp edged.

"But I doubt if Captain Dawson will let you. But let me warn you—her voice rose—"if you try anything, if you tell anything, I'll—I'll—"

"You might kill me, is that what you're trying to tell me, Mrs.
Benthorpe?" Ara's eyes blazed.

"I could make things rather unpleasant for you, but don't worry about it—I don't intend to. I want nothing that you can give me. And I don't hate you. My hate is dead.
Nothing matters—now."

Mrs. Benthorpe's face became crimson as she started to answer.
"Why—you—you—" But her enraged smile returned when she glimpsed Dawson and Douglas leaving the study. "Be quiet, now," she ordered Ara. "Here comes the detective. I'll see you later."

And as Dawson entered...
"Your breakfast suggestion was quite right, Captain. A little coffee has done wonders for me."

"I thought so, Mrs. Benthorpe," Dawson answered. "Will you come with me, now, Mrs. Benthorpe?"

"I'll have to search the house for a gun—the gun—and I should prefer that you were along."

"If you insist, Captain."

"John, you'd better have some food, too," Dawson said. "The butler will bring you coffee and toast and whatever else you want."

JOHN ate in silence. Only when Ara rose and started to leave did he turn to her.

"Ara, the time has come to tell the truth. You and I are going to be accused of a murder, if we don't tell Captain Dawson all the facts. I know it won't be easy."

"I don't see where I am involved. I—"

"But you are, Ara, and I have to know why," Douglas interrupted. "Tell me the truth, Ara
and perhaps I can save you..."

What were you doing in Ben-thorne's study last night?"

She turned on him angrily. "I wasn't in Benthorpe's study last night. What makes you ask that?"

He drew a button—a red, peculiarly-shaped button, from his vest pocket, held it beside two similar buttons on the sleeve of her dress. "Haven't you missed
this?"

She snatched the button from his hand. "Where did you find that? Does Dawson know?" Then as she became calmer: "There are thousands of buttons just like this one, why bother me with it?"

"There are three on your other sleeve." It was true.

"All right, suppose I was in Benthorpe's study. I was there this morning, talking to Captain Dawson. He knows that. When did you find it?"

"I found it in a chair—it fell out of a chair—last night," Douglas answered slowly. "Benthorpe was dead—did you see him last night?"
He was pleading for the truth,
although his own words were self-condemning.

"Yes," Ara answered slowly, as her eyes met his. "I saw Ara Benthorpe last night. But it was early in the evening—long before he was killed."

Memorial postage stamp, was recalling a yarn the other night about Gershwin's exchange of letters with the great composer, Igor Stravinsky.
A great admirer of Igor's, Gershwin once cabled him in Paris and asked how much he would charge for piano lessons. Stravinsky cabled back and asked how much Gershwin earned a year. "Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars," replied Gershwin.
"In that case," cabled back Stravin-sky, "how much will you charge me to become your pupil?"

Helen Hayes' mother did write the biography of her emigrant daughter and it was not ghosted as the rumor-mongers have tried to prove.

As if debutantes weren't crowding enough breadwinning songstresses out
